CHAIRish the Children Auction Benefits Child Abuse Prevention

Indianapolis – The ever-popular "CHAIRish the Children" auction returns -- this year bringing together the creativity of students from Herron School of Art and the support of the arts community to benefit Indiana's abused and neglected children served by The Villages and Prevent Child Abuse Indiana. This year's event will take place November 13 and will feature the work of Herron's Painting I, Drawing III and Professional Practice classes.

Thirty child-size chairs will be transformed into works of art, guest artists will be donating "chair-themed" artwork and benches will be designed and autographed by local celebrities, including a State of Indiana bench signed by Governor Mitch Daniels and University benches signed by IU, Purdue, Ball State, Butler and DePauw coaches.

Entertainment will be provided by Bill Lancton, 2005 Indianapolis Jazz Hall of Fame Inductee and recipient of the Creative Renewal Fellowship from the Arts Council of Indiana.
